

STEREOCHEMISTRY PRESS KIT

Stereochemistry's music travels along the lines of Ani DiFranco, Regina Spektor, Victoria Williams and such, but don't expect yet another withdrawn indie-folk musician on the stage.

Meet Miss Stereochemistry instead: a travelling consortium of five aliens sharing one human body, on a mission to explore and enlighten the human kind on its own contradictory existence on Planet Earth.

Stereochemistry serves her thought-provoking messages on society, politics, sex, religion, love, depression as a merciless yet prejudice free satirical musical cabaret, faithfully backed up by her guitar, piano, ukulele, violin bow and a loop station.

Behind this one-woman show stands Karla Hajman, Belgrade-born, Italy-raised and Berlin-based artist and scientist, who left her PhD in Experimental Audiology to dedicate herself to human ears from another perspective. Her creative versatility granted her everything from a chemotherapy patent to music collaborations with indie, techno and funk legends such as Jason Rubal (Amanda Palmer, Dresden Dolls), Steven Rutter of B12 and George Clinton's P-FUNK themselves.
